

Worth Storing?

StoreProtect it!

Goods Protection for Self Storage Customers

StoreProtect is additional protection for your stored goods and is available directly from your self storage provider.

Self storage businesses strive to provide safe and secure storage space, but loss or damage can still happen. Your goods are not automatically covered so it's important that you take steps to protect your goods whilst in storage.

When you choose StoreProtect with your storage unit, you gain peace of mind knowing your belongings are protected. Without StoreProtect, standard terms apply which limit the self storage provider's liability.

StoreProtect Customer Guidance

How it Works

- Simply arrange this comprehensive protection when booking your unit.
- By providing a Maximum Replacement Value for your belongings and paying the StoreProtect Fees, your self storage provider will assume an extended liability duty of care for your items.
- If your stored goods are damaged by an incident that the self storage provider could have prevented, the self storage provider will compensate you (subject to terms and conditions).

Important Information

- Unavoidable incidents like major flooding or Acts of God are not protected under StoreProtect.
- Your declared Maximum Replacement Value must represent the total current cost of replacing all stored property as new (except household linen, clothing, antiques, and documents, where the value must be calculated differently).
- StoreProtect is not available to customers who arrange insurance to protect their stored goods.
